

Alexandria Gazette.

THURSDAY EVENING, NOVEMBER 10.

A BRAVE BURMAN.—The Broad Arrow quotes the following from an Indian paper: "We have been accustomed to look upon the Burman as an arrant coward. Without going so far as to maintain that this is a gross libel I will briefly mention a circumstance which if it don't modify our opinion of him, will, at all events, induce us to think of him more kindly. Not long ago a party of infantry and cavalry came upon some mounted dacoits. After a sharp encounter the dacoits were put to flight. One of their number was suddenly hit by a bullet and knocked off his pony. Immediately a Burman galloped back, and, while the rest of the body rode on, dismounted, and picking up the wounded man, jumped on his pony again and rode off. This was done under a heavy fire from our men, and a few lancers, too, were charging down on him at full speed with leveled lances. It was an exciting moment. The brave Burman urged his pony on, and, with much pluck, outpacing his pursuers, escaped into the jungle as he well deserved to do after so gallant a deed. That was really a brave action. That man risked his life to save his comrade. There was no lurking hope of ulterior reward. That cannot be said of all the brave actions performed on battlefields."

A would be masher accosted a factory girl on the streets of Augusta, Me., the other evening and wanted to go home with her. She said that he might, and then carefully led her into a water tank that was sunk in the ground. She stood and laughed at him as he crawled out, and sneaked off, wet as a drowned rat.
